

CITY COUNCIL IS TO WAIT A WEEK

Defers Action on Street Oiling Contract to See What People Think of Boost in Price.

2½ TIMES AS GREAT THIS YEAR

People May Remonstrate Next Tuesday Night When Estimates Will be Considered Again.

The city council, at a special meeting last night deferred action on awarding the contract for oiling the city streets, until the next regular meeting, which will be held Tuesday night of next week, because the lowest bid was two and a half times
as great as the price paid for oiling
last year.

Varied opinions were expressed at the meeting. Some of the councilmen got out a pad and pencil and figured just what it would cost in front of their house. It developed into a personal question. The estimates were made in square yards and the councilmen figured it down to lineal feet,
taking the average width of the street
at thirty feet.

Later on in the meeting members of the council declared the people would not stand for such a price, because they were under the impression that the price of oiling would not be more than five cents a lineal foot, if it even were more than last year's contract. It was for this reason that they withheld final action on the bids
until they could get an expression
from the property owners.

By deferring actions on the bids
until a week from tonight, the council left an avenue open for property owners to object to the price. The people evidently want oiled streets
because there was only one remonstrance sustained last night, and that was only for a block and a half.

It is believed by the council that people did not remonstrate because they believed the oiling would not be more than five cents a lineal foot.
The impression, for some reason or other, is broadcast that the cost would not exceed five cents a lineal foot. It is too late to remonstrate, because none can be received after the bids are opened, but it is declared the city council will not allow the contract at the price if the people do not want it.

Two bids were submitted by Wilk
& Redman and the Ohio Construction Company, represented by Walter Reinheimer. The plans and specifications called for estimates by square yards. The councilmen had to figure the bids down to lineal feet so as to compare the cost with that of last year.

Wilk & Redman's bid was seven cents a square yard, using a gallon of oil to a square yard. The other bid was six cents a square yard where a gallon of oil to the square yard is used and five cents where three-fourths of a gallon is used. The councilmen found that six cents a square yard was the same as ten cents a running foot for the property owner on each side of the street,
providing the street is thirty feet wide. If it is wider, the cost would be greater, and if narrower, vice versa.

The plea of the contractors was that oil had advanced five and a quarter cents on the gallon since last year. A representative of Wilk & Redman said his firm made nothing doing the oiling at four cents a running foot last year. He declared that there would be another raise in the price of oil the first of June and that probably the work could not be done as cheaply then. The other contractor made the same assertions

concerning the advance in the price of oil.

The plans and specifications prepared by the city engineer call for a mixture containing forty per cent asphalt. The contractors said they figured on this mixture, which is the same as that used last year.

There were three different sets of specifications, all of which call for the same mixture. The difference in them is the preparation to be made for the oiling. Two sets provide that the surface of the street shall be torn up and leveled before the oil is applied. The specifications under the contractors bid merely provide that the surface of the street shall be free from dust before the oil is applied, and that the matter taken from the

SOLDIERS LEAVE FOR MORRISTOWN

Break Camp Here and Continue Hike Towards Indianapolis—Expect
to Get There Thursday.

MAY BE HERE ON RETURN TRIP

The two battalions of the Ninth Infantry, which camped here over night, left this morning shortly before seven o'clock for Morristown where they will stay tonight. The troops expect to reach Fort Benjamin Harrison sometime Thursday.
They will remain at the Indianapolis fort for six weeks and will participate in the annual target practice held there. While it has not been definitely determined, the troops may be sent back through here on their way to Fort Thomas on the return trip. The ground on which they camped last night was like a lake and there was not a dry tent in the entire lot. Ever since they left Cincinnati the soldiers have encountered rain and are getting used to it. They passed through Arlington this morning at nine o'clock and expected to reach Morristown by noon.

NEIGHBORHOOD IN SQUIRE'S COURT

Troubles of Mrs. Mary Fields Aired and She Draws a Fine Which Amounts to $16.85.

WITNESSES REPUDIATE HER

The whole neighborhood was in Squire James Kratzer's court last night, when Mrs. Mary Fields was arraigned on a charge of provoking William Ravencroft, which was preferred by Ravencroft. After hearing the evidence, Squire Kratzer fined Mrs. Fields $16.85. The fine was stayed.

Ravencroft was arrested last Thursday morning on an assault and battery charge, made by Mrs.
Fields, who swore Ravencroft hit her over the head with a stick of wood. He paid his fine of a dollar and costs, amounting in all to $9.75
and fled a provoke charge against Mrs. Fields. She pleaded not guilty.

The witnesses testified last night
Mrs. Fields applied an epithet to Ravencroft which provoked him.
Mrs. Fields denied that she had called Ravencroft such a name, but the two witnesses who were called for her repudiated her statements.

Daily Republican Installs a Modern Linotype Machine

Another electric motor, which operates a new linotype machine, was added to the busy hum of the Republican mechanical department today. A new typesetting machine has just been added to the equipment so as to facilitate the work in all departments. The addition to the newspaper will make it possible to set more reading matter and at the same time it will be helpful in advertising and job printing.

The new machine is the latest improved model—the last word in typesetting machinery. This brings up the typesetting equipment of the Republican office ahead of any newspaper or printing concern in this part of the State. The machine just installed is what is called the No. 8 Multiple Magazine Linotype, and the following lines show the various type faces that can be set on this machine without the operator leaving the keyboard:

THE DAILY REPUBLICAN is well equipped for all kinds of work.
THE DAILY REPUBLICAN is well equipped for all kinds of work.
THE DAILY REPUBLICAN is well equipped for all kinds of work.
THE DAILY REPUBLICAN is well equipped for all kinds of work.
The Daily Republican is well equipped.
The Daily Republican is well equipped.

The Republican is able to install this modern equipment because of the patronage given it by the people of the city and the county. The Republican feels indebted for the stamp of approval set on it by the community, and by adding up-to-date appliances, hopes to further merit the patronage of the people and give them better returns in all departments.

LOSES IN A RACE RUSHVILLE TO WITH GRIM DEATH BE REPRESENTED

Prof. O. D. Tyner Fails to Reach Wife's Bedside Before She Expired at Madison Hospital.

CALLED THERE YESTERDAY

But Arrived Too Late to Find Her Alive—News of Her Demise is Deep Shock.

Prof. O. D. Tyner, principal of the Rushville high school, was unsuccessful in a race with death yesterday afternoon. He received word that his wife was critically ill in the hospital at Madison, and he immediately started for her side. She expired at five-thirty o'clock yesterday evening, but Mr. Tyner was unable to reach her by that time. The body arrived here this morning.

Mrs. Tyner had a host of friends here who deeply deplore their loss.
They are expressing their sympathy to Prof. Tyner who is greatly beloved by the entire community where he has so successfully worked in school and community life, since taking up his residence here.

For years Prof. and Mrs. Tyner have cherished the hope of Mr. Tyner securing a position as instructor of higher mathematics in a Christian college. Just now, since Mr. Tyner had been elected to a position in Wheaton College, it seems too sad that they could not enjoy this long sought ideal together. The news of her death came so suddenly that everyone was shocked to hear of it.

Mrs. Tyner was born June 3, 1875,
and was therefore thirty-seven years,
eleven months, and twenty-five days old at the time of her death. She was the daughter of William B. and Elsie E. Williams, both of whom are living. Besides two sisters and a brother survive her. One sister, Mrs.
Jessie Barton lives in Marion, Indiana, the other sister, Mrs. Olive Harrell lives in Ft. Mackenzie, Wyoming, the bother, John Williams lives in Logansport. One brother, Homer, died in infancy.

Mrs. Tyner received her education in the public schools of Wabash
county and the LaGro high school.
She took private lessons in music in

Scores of Motorists Will Journey to Indianapolis to See Great Speedway Event.

NEW ATTITUDE IS TAKEN

Many Who Would Like to go Feel Twinge of Conscience Because Memorial Day is Desecrated.

Unless the weather turns ugly and the roads become bad, Rushville will be represented at the big race at Indianapolis Speedway next Friday by a large delegation.

A canvass of local motor circles made today revealed that not fewer than fifty cars are planning to make the trip. Most of these will not leave Rushville until early Friday morning, 3 o'clock.

A few cars will go down Thursday evening. These cars will carry young fellows who want to cram as much sport as possible into twenty-four hours. They will attend the boxing matches that are to be staged on Thursday night and will take in the 500-mile race next day.

Scores of owners of automobiles
in Rushville and vicinity would like to see the race, but are deterred from doing so by distates of conscience.
They can not bring themselves to feel that it is exactly the right thing to stage a great international sporting event on the day that is set aside for decorating the graves of the nation's dead and paying grateful and becoming tribute to their memory.

There seems to be no good reason why the management of the Speedway should single out Memorial day as the one holiday of all on which to hold this race. It is true that the race has never failed to attract a crowd of tremendous proportions, but it is also true that the race has always been held in defiance of a sense of outrage upon the part of those who look upon Memorial day as a day that should be marked only by quiet, thoughtful and solemnly patriotic ceremonies, and as a day that should be made as secure against desecration as the Sunday

It is argued by those who oppose the holding of the race on Memorial day that it could be held with entire propriety on the Fourth of July. The Fourth, in its very nature, is a day

for celebrations, for music, noise, action and every kind of thrilling and spectacular striving. There are in Rushville hundreds of motor enthusiasts who would be delighted at an opportunity to see such a race on the Fourth of July, but who could not be tempted to go near it on Memorial day. And what is true of this community, doubtless is true of every other in Indiana. So, it would seem, that the Speedway management, for the reason of the additional money it would mean to them, if for no other,
would make the change suggested.

Local followers of the automobile racing game say that this year's race

Superintendent George has completed the grading of the eighth year examination papers. There will be one hundred and twenty-two graduates in the county this year. The educational day exercises will be held Wednesday, June 11, in the Coliseum.
The Rev. L. E. Brown of Connersville has been secured to deliver the address. He will take for his subject "A Batch of Biscuits." The Rev. Mr. Brown was formerly pastor of the Christian church in Lebanon and has probably delivered more commencement addresses than any other one man in the state. He is in great demand and is an eloquent platform man.

The highest average on the final examination was made by Miss Ruth Owens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Charles Owens of Orange township.
Her average was 96.8 per cent. Other high averages follow: Hazel Grigsby, Richland, 95.6 per cent; Grace Trowbridge, Center, 95.4 per cent; Iva
Comely, 94.9 per cent; Blount Mull, Walker, 94.8. The highest average last year was 95.8 and was made by Belinda Crane of Anderson township.
Blount Mull completed the eight years' course in seven years.

hope to have it all by Sunday night.

MAY USE PROFIT TO PAY EXPENSES

City Has Legal Right to Convert Water and Light Earnings to General Fund Under New Act

MAY ALSO OWN TELEPHONE

Another Act Empowers City to Establish and Maintain Public Playgrounds and Baths

Three of the nineteen acts of the last legislature applying to municipal corporations are for local "consumption" since they have direct bearing on conditions here. One amends an act of 1908, making it possible for cities to use the profit from their public utilities to pay the current expenses of the city. Such a thing was not possible previously.

Another act lists telephones as one of the public utilities that a municipal corporation may own.
Still another makes arrangement for the establishment of public baths, playgrounds or comfort stations at public expense.

Senate Bill 198 (Chapter 85) amends Section 93 of the cities and towns act, as previously amended by acts 1909, Page 465. The eighth subdivision is amended by inserting the word "telephone," as below indicated, so as to give to the boards of public works of cities power to purchase, construct and operate
"water works, gas works, electric light works, telephone, heating and power plants, steam and power houses and lines for the purpose of supplying such city and the inhabitants," etc.

Senate Bill 56 (Chapter 56) approved March 3, amends Section 251
of the cities and towns act (Burns, 1908, Section 8923), in relation to the management and operation of water works, gas works, electric light work and heating and power plants owned by cities and towns.

The provision of the old law that the income from any such municipal plant should not be appropriated to any other use or purpose than for the benefit of the particular work from which they were derived, and the payment of its employees and running expenses is eliminated.

The amended act provides that
"any surplus remaining in such fund or funds at the close of any year and not needed for the payment of the employees, general running expenses,

No More Storage of Grain by Dealers and Millers

In an interview with Grain Dealers and Millers of Rush County, as to the effect of the recent legislation, which provides that Mills, Elevators and Warehouses, that accept grain on deposit or storage, with or without compensation, shall become public storage companies, and fall under the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission, the same as Railroads, Interurban Roads, Telegraph Companies, etc.

Each authorized the statement that they could not afford to comply with the requirements of the law governing public service companies, with its complicated system of bookkeeping, reports, etc., when business itself is unprofitable, hence they can not now longer accept grain on storage without rendering themselves liable to heavy penalties, therefore, to a man, they propose to abandon the practice entirely, and since the practice of loaning money to depositors and others has been indulged in so liberally by some grain dealers, in consequence of the storage of grain and otherwise, it is understood that such as have thus performed the functions of the banker will abandon that practice and no more money will be advanced, loaned or provided for by them, except in payment for grain, seed, etc., as the same is purchased and delivered.

DANGER FROM AIRSHIPS AT THE PANAMA CANAL.

Fowler's Flight Across the Isthmus Renews Speculation.

The recent flight of Fowler, the aviator, over the route of the Panama canal has started anew the discussion of the vulnerability of the canal to attacks from the sky. About four months ago Miss Moisant while visiting on the isthmus said that explosives could easily be dropped from an aeroplane with sufficient accuracy to put out of service any flight of locks. This is tantamount to putting the canal out of service. At that time Colonel Goethals expressed his entire confidence that no airship could come sufficiently close to the locks to drop explosives without being exposed to fire.

Fowler's flight was made for the express purpose of taking a series of birdseye moving pictures, and to this end he sailed low, at no time being much higher than 2,000 feet above the canal. He is, however, also of the opinion that an aeroplane standing so high above the locks that it would be out of range of gun fire would yet be in position to drop explosives upon vulnerable parts.

The locks are great chambers of concrete, with walls fifty feet thick, and in the chambers there will always be from ten to fifty feet of water. The only part of them that could be injured is the gates. These are steel forms from forty to eighty feet high, seven feet thick and sixty-five feet wide. The part exposed to an explosive will be sixty-five feet long and seven feet wide. This would make a small target at a distance of a mile.

On the other hand, the machines that move the gates are exposed upon the lock walls, being covered with only a thin roof of concrete. They would form a better target, and yet this also would be only twenty-five feet in diameter. If these machines were shattered the gates could still be moved by hand winches. The smallness of the areas that could be affected by an explosive dropped upon them is, therefore, a negative protection for the locks against air attacks.

Dogs are said to have been employed to guard railways in Greece during the recent war.

THE COLONEL'S LIBEL SUIT ON

Interesting Trial In Progress at Marquette.

SHORT WORK GETTING JURY

Initial Stage in Proceeding in Which Former President Seeks to Defend His Good Name Against Alleged Libelous Utterances of an Ispeming Newspaper Is Being Followed by the Colonel With Keen Attention.

Marquette, Mich., May 27.—The trial of the libel suit of Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States, against George Newett, editor of the Ispeming Iron Ore, was called in circuit court here promptly at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Judge Flannigan. The colonel's entrance into the courtroom was the signal for much craning of necks and hand-clapping by every person with the exception of just one, that person being Editor Newett, the defendant. As Roosevelt passed Newett's seat the editor did not turn to give the colonel a friendly gaze. Colonel Roosevelt picked a seat on the spectators' bench and Newett sat at a table with his lawyers. Interest was displayed by Roosevelt as the roll of jurors was called. The drawing of a jury did not prove to be a hard task. After the examination of forty-eight talesmen, at 10:30 o'clock last night the twelfth man of the jury was selected.

Colonel Roosevelt will be the first witness called. The article in the Iron Ore which is the basis for the suit will be offered in evidence and then the colonel will take the stand to deny the truth of the statement that he "gets drunk," contained therein.

The question of who will have the first inning in the testimony introduced in the case promises to start a warm legal battle. Both sides are prepared to battle hard for the position of advantage.

Attorney James H. Pound of Detroit, representing Colonel Roosevelt, will take the position that all that is necessary to prove the preliminary case against Newett is to introduce the copy of the Ispeming Iron Ore containing the offending article, as evidence and then take the statement of Colonel Roosevelt himself that the printed statement is totally untrue. If Mr. Pound has his way, when this much is done, it will be up to Newett to prove the charge he has made against Roosevelt, if he has the witnesses so to do, while the Roosevelt side withholds its hot shot in the shape of character testimony from some of the most famous men in the world to be introduced in rebuttal. On the other hand Mr. Belden, counsel for Newett, will insist that the entire Roosevelt case be presented at the start.

Roosevelt attorneys say they are not attacking Newett alone, but through him all those who have whispered the story Newett printed.

The substance of the affidavits on which Newett's case will rest has become known though the documents themselves are under seal. The greater part of the evidence was collected in Ohio, along the route of Roosevelt's campaign trip last fall. The affidavits charge that in Athens, Bellefontaine, Jackson, Urbana and Martins Ferry Roosevelt was assisted to the platform by an attendant at each elbow and a third behind; that he exhibited symptoms of excitement and conducted himself generally in such a manner as to lead the witnesses to believe he was under the influence of liquor. Affidavits taken by Roosevelt's attorneys, following in the trail of Newett's lawyer, will seek to show that it is customary to support dignitaries to the rostrum.

Personal testimony will be introduced, according to the Roosevelt attorneys, that on the Ohio campaign tour Roosevelt tasted alcoholic drinks only once—a part of a glass of champagne at the home of Dan R. Hanna, at Ravenna.

Another affidavit among the seventy or more now in the court files charges that Roosevelt apparently was drunk at St. Louis. Former Governor Hadley of Missouri has been called to deny this statement, and testify that on the day in question Roosevelt made a trip in an airship, exhibiting great coolness and steadiness while in the air. Roosevelt also has affidavits from surgeons who treated him after he was shot in Milwaukee, declaring a thorough examination disclosed no alcoholic taint in him.

Newett's lawyers have kept their personal witnesses a secret.

TOO BUSY TO SEE ANYBODY

New Ambassador to England Is Losing No Time.

London, May 27.—Ambassador Page has lost no time in taking up the duties of his position as American envoy here. He surprised the staff of the embassy by walking in much earlier than expected and calling for his mail. When he had read it he immersed himself in the five months' arrears of diplomatic work, saying he was too busy to see anybody.

Mayfair hostesses are showing great eagerness to capture the ambassador, but Mr. Page has already intimated that he is not in London for entertainments.

MRS. MARSHALL

Wife of Vice President Sets a New Pace in Social Calls.

© 1913, by American Press Association.

NEW RECORD MADE BY MRS. MARSHALL

Has Set Unprecedented Pace in Social Calls.

Washington, May 27.—Regardless of discussion going on in and out of official society as to whether or not the wives of cabinet members shall return calls made on them, Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, who finds her position somewhat analogous to that of Mrs. Wilson and the cabinet women, has gone quietly on and broken the calling record of Washington. In one afternoon recently Mrs. Marshall made forty-five calls in one hour and thirty minutes. She went about in her own car, drove up to each door and methodically left the proper number of cards.

Mrs. Marshall has made more than 800 calls, and if it has fatigued her in the least, she does not show it. She is as fresh and bright and in as good health as she was before Mr. Marshall was made governor of Indiana and she was initiated into public life. Mrs. Marshall has missed only two weeks since March 4 in observing her Wednesday "At Home" and this has left thousands of cards on her hands. She necessarily has had to make the stand that where no street address was given she was not expected to return a visit, except in the cases of women in the house and senate. These she has carefully hunted up.

The Second Appeal.

Washington, May 27.—The case of Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison, officers of the American Federation of Labor, adjudged in contempt of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, has been formally submitted to the supreme court of the United States on appeal. It is the second time these cases have appeared in the supreme court.

WILSON'S ATTACK ON TARIFF LOBBY

Fell Like a Bomb Among Bill's Opponents.

THEY WEREN'T LOOKING FOR IT

While the Opponents of the Underwood Revenue Measure Were Looking For a Fight, They Did Not Expect It So Soon or in Such a Direct and Forceful Way—President Appeals to the Opinion of the Public.

Washington, May 27.—Like a bomb President Wilson's attack on the lobby maintained in Washington against the administration's tariff bill fell among the opponents of the measure. Those who are opposed to the Underwood bill and who are seeking to have it changed expected a fight, but they were not looking for it so soon or in such a direct and forceful way.

The ranks of the opposition were thrown into confusion by the president's charge of the existence of an industrious and insidious lobby which is seeking to "create an artificial opinion and to overcome the interests of the public for their private profit." The leaders in the fight against the Underwood measure have not entirely recovered their self-possession, but from some of them have come charges of unfairness and oppression against the president. Some of the Democrats were even inclined to characterize Mr. Wilson's charges as exaggerated and unfortunate for business men and others affected by the tariff bill who have come to Washington to make an honest effort toward what they regarded as a misfortune.

Although the president mentioned no names in his statement, it was evident that he had especially in mind a lobby now working here for the restoring of a duty on sugar in place of the ultimate free list provision in the Underwood bill. The president's statement was immediately interpreted here as notice by him that he is ready to fight for free sugar and free wool to the finish and that he intends to go directly to the people of the country for his support.

President Wilson's statement was issued after an informal conversation with the Washington newspaper correspondents. In this conversation he accused the lobbyists of conducting a campaign of consistent misrepresentation in regard to the probable effects of the tariff rates in the Underwood bill. He expressed the opinion that the tariff lobby now in operation in Washington represents the most concentrated effort ever made by private interests to overcome a piece of legislation pending in congress. It was a request from the newspaper men to quote his views which led the president to issue his formal statement. The president made it plain that he was counting on public sentiment in the country to force into line those Democratic members of congress who are disposed to vote against certain features of the bill. His statement was interpreted here not only as a blow at the lobbyists, but as a move indirectly to drive the threatening Democratic senators in line.

THROWS THE BURDEN UPON THE CONSUMERS

Government Relieved of Cost of Reclamation.

Washington, May 27.—The United States supreme court has handed down a decision affecting the water users of government reclamation projects in the west which involves hundreds of millions of dollars.

The court held that the secretary of the interior has the power under the reclamation act to impose a tax on the users of water in reclamation projects to pay the expenses of "maintenance and operation" as well as for the original cost of constructing the reclamation works.

Another important decision by the supreme court construing the laws which are supposed to give a monopoly in a patented article was handed down, the opinion holding that a retailing druggist may sell a patented article, which he has purchased from a jobber, at less than the price fixed by the patentee without infringing the patent.

Preacher Under Arrest

Plainfield, N. J., May 27.—Rev. Willis S. MacRorie, former pastor of the Mt. Horeb M. Mushroom Fascination.

A certain romance lends fascination to the mysterious mushroom of the woodlands. In childhood we used to read how the fairies danced on the toadstools and on the green rings of grass that often grow around them.

Assuming that a lover of edible mushrooms takes the short end of a 1000 to 1 bet on a poisonous case, the game affords him that possibility of disaster that emphasizes his pride in his skill. Finding himself alive after eating mushrooms, he feels the sense of satisfied achievement in the way of research.

You never see men of a sporting temperament out gathering the humble and democratic berry. There is no tang of risk about such a commonplace pursuit, which is condescendingly relegated to women, children, and the decrepit.

The gamy mushroom, however, arouses the lust of competition. Your antagonist is not so much the chance of getting the wrong mushroom, as your sense of superiority over your neighbor, whose ignorance and fears debar him from one of the choicest morsels in nature's larder, which is placed on your table by your own science.

There is something picturesque, too, in the thought of getting breakfast in so unlikely a spot as one of the shade trees of your street, or the barren hillocks of your pastures. Like the boy who sticks his finger in the jam jar, you seem to have extracted a goody from Mother Nature's pantry when she wasn't looking.

The careful student can undoubtedly eat mushrooms with safety. He naturally declines to eat fruits or berries found growing wild, merely because there are poisonous varieties then why also veto the mushroom?

Nature seems to have expended some of her most vital juices in this exotic creation. Mushrooms are known to lift asphalt pavement, and crack it, in their desire to get light and air. It is no wonder that their fiber contains powerful appeal to human appetite.

A well known scientist says that it is not possible for the amateur to tell whether unknown varieties are poisonous or not. As everyone is an amateur to begin with, and all varieties unknown, most of us regard the mushroom fad in the light that you could not go in the water until you have learned to swim.

SITE SELECTION IS IMPORTANT TASK

Grand Lodge of Masons Opens in Indianapolis Today With Expectation of Settling Question.

RUSHVILLE IS MENTIONED

Selection of a site for an Indiana Masonic home will be the most important business transaction by the ninety-second annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons to be held at the Masonic Temple, Illinois and North streets, today and tomorrow, says the Indianapolis Star.

Six cities are contending for the institution, with Jeffersonville probably in the lead because a fund of $157,000 from a legacy left by the late James A. Holt will be available if the home is located there. Crawfordsville, Franklin, Zionville, Rushville and Bedford are the other applicants. The principal objection to Jeffersonville is from those who desire a more central location. Mr. Holt died at Louisville and left $157,000 for a Masonic home provided it be established in or near Jeffersonville.

Contributions amounting to one hundred and twenty-two thousand dollars have been received by the Masonic home committee during the last two years, so that the institution's establishment is assured. On the committee are Dr. O. W. Brownback, Pendleton; O. E. Holloway, Knightstown; Earl H. Payne, Rushville, and Richard H. Schweitzer of Knightstown.

improvements, repairs to any such works, or debt, may be appropriated by the common council, board of public works, or board of trustees to the general funds of any such city or town. Provided, however, that no transfer of such funds shall be made so long as a bonded debt against said works remains unpaid, in whole or in part.

House Bill 141 (Chapter 48), approved February 28, provides for the establishment, maintenance and the equipment, at public expense, of public playgrounds, public baths and public comfort stations, in cities of all five classes. Authority in the matter is conferred on the board of health and charities in cities of the first class, on "the board of health and charities, or the board of school commissioners or board of school trustees" in all other cities. Such boards are "authorized to use and to permit the use of any public grounds or buildings under their control, as in their judgment may be required or adaptable," and to "lease or purchase grounds, either adjacent thereto or elsewhere in such cities," and to condemn additional real estate for such purposes.

Such boards shall have full control and custody of all such playgrounds, baths and comfort stations, including the policing and preservation of order thereon, and may adopt regulations and enforce them by suitable penalties. They may appoint a commission to take charge of the work with the aid of assistants, and may fix the compensation of all employees.

All expenses shall be borne by the city, from a tax levy of not more than 2 cents nor less than 1 cent on each $100, which must be levied in Indianapolis and may be in other cities to form a "recreation fund" that shall not be used for any other purposes.

RAPIDLY WAKING UP IN INDIANA

Farmers Are Responding to the Increasing Demand For a Larger Milk Production.

GREATER INTEREST AROUSED

Demonstrated by Attitude Farmers Take Toward Lines of Educational Fair Work.

Indications are pointing toward a rapid awakening among Indiana farmers, in response to the increasing demand for a larger milk production. Throughout the entire State they are showing a quickened interest in subjects pertaining to the dairy industry.

The truth of these statements is clearly demonstrated by the attitude the farmers of today are taking toward the different lines of dairy educational work conducted by Purdue University. For instance, dairying is becoming decidedly more popular with the regular students as well as those attending the one week and eight weeks short courses. More interest is also shown, in dairying, at the short courses conducted throughout the State, the Farmers' Institutes, and special dairy meetings.

The attendance and interest at the Indiana State Dairy Association meetings, this year, far exceeded that of previous years, which also strengthens the evidence that an increasing number of Indiana farmers have reached the point where they are willing to take action on methods of improving their present conditions, as our leading dairy country has done.

Denmark, as the result of direct necessity, in 1884, established her first Cow Testing Association. The average production of her cows at that time was 112 pounds butterfat per cow per year. In 1908 it had increased to 224 pounds or exactly twice that amount. If Denmark, the leading dairy country of the world, can double the production of her cows by the use of the Cow Testing Association, which provides for the systematic use of the Babcock test and scales, is it not possible for Indiana dairymen to make the fundamental principles of the Cow Testing Association serve them, as effectively, in doubling the production of their cows?

The first Cow Testing Association in the United States was organized in Michigan in 1905. Since that time there has been over one hundred of these Associations organized among the leading Dairy States and, almost without exception, the most progressive of these States have the greatest number of Cow Testing Associations.

The Northwestern Indiana Cow Testing Association was organized by the Purdue Dairy Extension Movement, at Crown Point, Indiana, March 20th, and is the first Cow Testing Association to be organized in this state. The LeRay Cow Testing Association, a sister Association of the former, was organized a few days later. It is hoped that these two Associations will be a great stimulus to Indiana dairymen to support the Cow Testing Association movement which will be a powerful factor in revolutionizing the dairy industry throughout the State.

There are over 750 cows in the two Associations mentioned. Each Association is self-supporting and has a man employed who is known as the official tester. The tester spends a day with each member of the Association once a month. While on the farm, he weighs the amount of feed that each cow receives, weighs and tests the amount of milk each cow produces, and from this data, computes a financial statement which shows the relative merit of each individual in the herd. The tester also assists the farmer in figuring out the most practical and economical balanced ration for his conditions and gives suggestions on the care and management of the herd where needed. It is quite evident that a man, working in this capacity, can be an invaluable source of information to the community in which he is working.

Judge Barhorst DOES HIS DUTY TO RHEUMATIC SUFFERERS

If you suffer from Rheumatism and don't read this advice, then the terrible disease must have robbed you of your power to be fair to yourself. Read it:

"I, John Barhorst, Justice of the Peace of McLean Township, Ft. Loramit, Ohio, do certify that after treatment by three doctors without result, I have been cured of a very bad case of Rheumatism by using two bottles of RHEUMA. It is now two years since I used the remedy, and I am still as well as ever. Previous to using RHEUMA I was a cripple, walking with crutches and I feel it my duty to let other sufferers from Rheumatism know what it will do. The result seems almost miraculous to me. I have advised RHEUMA to at least a dozen persons, and each one speaks as highly of it as I. I will answer any one suffering from the disease if a two-cent stamp is enclosed."—May 31, 1912.

You may secure a bottle of RHEUMA for only 50 cents at Johnson's drug store and if not as advertised, money back. It's just as good for Gout, Arthritis, Lumbago and Sciatica.

The Argyle Case

CHAPTER IX.

"Is it a counterfeit?"

MR. COLT proved to be large and of a generous and well fed appearance. He was over six feet high and fully that in circumference. He was under forty, dressed well, and his face beamed good nature.

"Hello, Colt!" exclaimed Kayton with real cordiality as he entered.

"Hello, you old plutocrat!" bellowed the newcomer, with an expansive grin as he rolled to the desk. He gazed about him appreciatively. "You've got an office here like a bloated senator. What are you tryin' to do with that $100 bill?"

"Is it a counterfeit?" parried Kayton.

"A dandy!" declared Mr. Colt enthusiastically, as he sank into the chair lately vacated by Mr. Hurley, the chair fairly shrieking its protests. "It's such a mighty good counterfeit it's better than the real! You've got the luck of a drunken Indian. Go out on a footy murder case and stub your toe on a thing like this!" Mr. Colt shook his massive head mournfully over the injustice of the world. "Let me tell you—it's a bomb under the treasury! We've wired Washington and they've got a scare out all over the country. If you turn up the man who made this bill you can have anything Uncle Sam can give you! I never have any luck like that."

Kayton took the bill from him and examined it critically. He had been something of an expert in his earlier days and he could appreciate art. "How do you suppose they ever put it together?" he murmured wonderingly.

"Well, it's a photographic process—that's a cinch!" declared Colt. "No hand ever touched that plate. Look at the lathe work!"

"And look at the ink!" exclaimed Kayton.

"Perfect!" pronounced the government agent solemnly. "How'd you ever get on to it?"

"Why," replied Kayton modestly, "some of these silk fibers struck me as being off color."

"Say," exclaimed the fattest man in the federal government, with a laugh that was half mirth and half nervous awe, "this sort of thing is going to knock the currency into a cocked hat! Pretty soon you won't be able to take money from a man unless he gives you a Masonic grip with it. And you mean to tell me that you found that bill in a millionaire's desk?"

"I admit it's impossible," smiled Kayton, "but I did."

Colt stared incredulously. "That a man in Argyle's position would mix himself up with a band of criminals who'd blackmail him for the rest of his life?"

Kayton nodded and shrugged his shoulders.

"He may have been non compos mentis—just plain crazy," he suggested musingly, holding up the bill. "Talk about mysteries, Colt! This is the only real mystery I ever met."

"Have you got any clew?"

Kayton leaned back. "Well, I'm playing a long shot," he returned evasively. "Couldn't any of you experts down at the office give a wild guess whose work this was?"

Colt shook his head gloomily. "No. There isn't a counterfeiter on the books could do it. The man that got that together has been quietly experimenting for years."

Kayton nodded again and called to Manning to hand him the list that he had been compiling. The chief glanced over it.

"How about Brockton?" he inquired, looking up at the government expert. Colt shook his head violently.

"He hasn't been out long enough."

"Could old man Rich have done it?"

"Oh, no! He's too feeble. It may be a newcomer, you know."

Kayton dropped the list on the desk. "Well, I've got a kind of lead that it's one of the Frisco bunch that was rounded up fifteen years ago," he declared.

"What do you mean?" inquired Colt with a business like interest that he usually concealed under his easy looking exterior. His exterior, by the way, was one of his strongest assets. The fat did not penetrate to his brain.

"Joe, get me those Frisco wires." He glanced over the bundle of telegrams and went on.

"There was a woman indicated—a Frisco woman—in the background of the Argyle murder case. She was supposed to be dead. I wired for information and found she'd been sent to prison with a gang of counterfeiters. Here it is:

"Nellie Marsh sentenced to San Quentin for three years about time of reported death." And this one says: "N. M. left state expiration of sentence. No further record here." Now, you know, Colt, the man that made the plate for the Webster gang—his name is Kreiser—did some pretty crafty work, and he hasn't been heard from since."

Colt drew a very audible breath, and his big eyes gleamed.

"That's so!" he declared. "By gad! That bill hooked up with Argyle and Argyle with the woman and the woman with the Webster gang makes a noise like a lockstep, don't it? I swear you've certainly got the luck!"

"I haven't got the woman or the man," returned Kayton grimly.

"But you'd get 'em," ventured Colt. "Even if you didn't have the whole United States secret service turned loose to help you." And with a hearty handshake he left the room.

"Business of seeing the chief," he vouchsafed as he passed out. Kayton picked up the receiver of his desk phone.

"Get me Tolworthy & Mead," he said into the mouthpiece and then glanced up at Manning, who had entered.

"Joe, we've got all the rocks flying with that counterfeit, haven't we?"

"Yes, I was just thinking," added the young man whimsically, "that murder was hard on the Argyles, but it was a great thing for the government."

Kayton tried to look reproving, but he choked, and a voice on the wire saved his dignity.

It was the younger Mr. Tolworthy. He informed Kayton that the quarry had risen to the lure of the fake "personal." Some ten minutes before a woman had called up the law office on the telephone and told Mr. Tolworthy that she was Nellie Marsh. He had referred her to Kayton, and Kayton might expect a call at any moment.

There was a triumphant gleam in Kayton's eyes as he threw the receiver on to the hook with a rush.

"Joe," he commanded sharply, "tell the outer office if any woman comes from Tolworthy & Mead I want to see her right away."

"N. M. heard from, governor?" asked Manning eagerly.

"Well, some woman called up Tolworthy & Mead a few minutes ago."

"Just after Hurley left?" said Manning significantly.

They exchanged glances. "Exactly," said Kayton. "He swallowed it—hook, line and sinker."

Manager Leischmann stepped inside the office.

"Miss Mazuret—to see you," he said.

"Show her in," said Kayton, in matter of fact fashion, but in tones that held such an undercurrent of eagerness that they caused both Manning and the manager to glance at their chief curiously.

Nor was their curiosity lessened when, a moment later, the young lady entered the room. For Kayton, a moment before the calm, collected man of action, seemed as embarrassed as a schoolboy in the girl's presence.

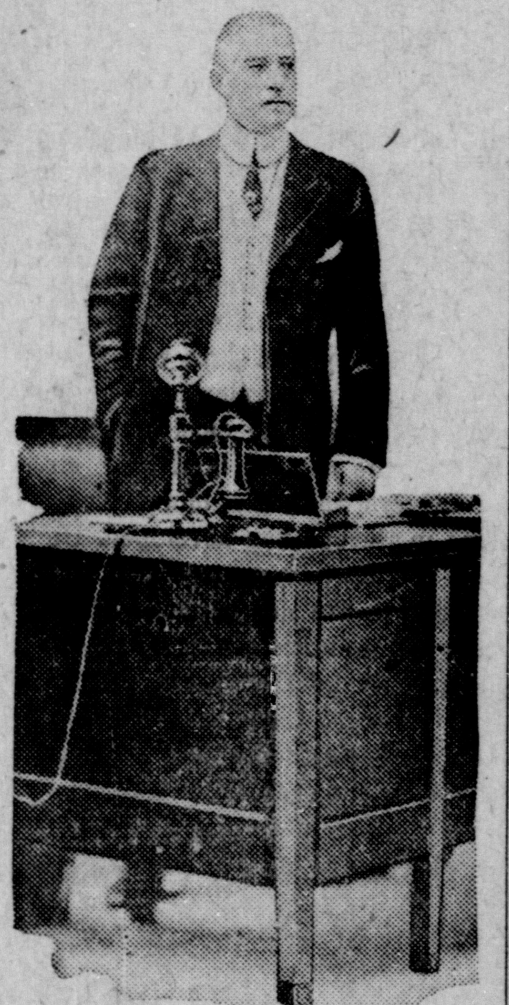

"Good morning!" he exclaimed, with rather more animation than was his wont, as she advanced with outstretched hand. "Ah! How are you?"

"Good morning," the girl returned, and shook hands with him politely. Her manner was visibly constrained and he felt disproportionately hurt, when you consider that he was used to have people with constrained manners come into his office. He angrily assured himself that he was perfectly at ease and to prove it inquired with some nervousness:

"Did you have any trouble getting down here?"

The girl took a seat, unbidden, and Kayton swore at himself for forgetting the most natural politeness. But there was something in the girl's manner that was unmistakably forbidding.

"No," she replied coldly, looking down at a glove which she had stripped off on entering. "There were some reporters out in front, so I left by the servants' entrance on the side street. And, you see, I didn't wear mourning. I was afraid it would attract attention."

Kayton nodded sympathetically, and the girl looked up at him with a new expression.

"Mr. Kayton," she said quietly, "didn't you promise me that you would not make public what I said about Bruce coming back that night?"

In an instant Kayton understood her manner and drew a quick breath of relief.

"No; I didn't promise you, Miss Mazuret," he replied as quietly, "but I didn't make it public."

He was more than rewarded by the look that leaped to the girl's eyes and the manner with which she exclaimed: "Oh, I'm so glad! Because"—she hesitated and examined the glove again—"oh, because, you see, I trusted you. I believed in you! Then it was Bruce!" she declared, rising quickly as she noted with something akin to alarm a look that came into his eyes.

"Yes; I suppose he gave it out himself," he agreed slowly as she seated herself again. He drew closer to her and looked down until she felt that she had to look up. Then he said in tones of rather more sincerity than the occasion demanded:

"Miss Mazuret, if anything comes up again or if I do anything that you don't understand please don't lose faith in me. There may be several things about this case that I'll never be able to explain to you. It's been bad enough for you to have been dragged in at all, and I want to save you all I can."

"Oh," exclaimed the girl softly,

"Then it was Bruce!" she declared, gratefully, "you are so good to me! I don't know what I'd do without you!" Kayton caught his breath with a little gasp.

"Don't try to do without me," he begged swiftly. "I'm only too glad!" He pulled himself up as the girl drew away ever so slightly. When he went on his voice was pleasant and all but impersonal—that of a safe friend.

"You know," he explained, with a smile, "it's the most pleasant part of our work that we are usually able to help some one in trouble this way. We're different from the police detectives. They're paid by society to punish the criminals. We are retained by the victims of the criminal for protection. They are punishing the strong—we are protecting the weak."

"Oh, I didn't realize that!" exclaimed Miss Mazuret, with feeling. "You love your work, don't you?"

"Well, I'm like a doctor or a surgeon," he replied, still smiling. "I go from case to case or from operation to operation, helping people and fighting the disease of crime, and, like all doctors, when the patients are well and they've paid me they forget me."

In spite of the railleury of the voice and words there was a sublimity of bitterness, of loneliness, that went straight to the girl's sensitive heart.

"Oh," she cried and impulsively held out her hand, "I shall never forget you!"

Kayton took it in a gentle grasp and leaned forward.

"I wish," he began earnestly and dropped the hand suddenly as the door clicked and Manning entered.

"Governor, the lady from Tolworthy's is here," he announced without ceremony. Kayton, inwardly amused at what he imagined would be the state of his adoring disciple's mind if he even remotely guessed the character of the conference, he had interrupted, nodded brightly.

"Just a minute, Joe," he said. Then he turned again to the girl.

"Miss Mazuret, this may be important," he said, opening a door that led into an inner office. "I want you to wait in the office here and be sure and not go until I see you."

The girl murmured her willingness to obey his commands and passed in through the door, which he promptly closed after her.

"Where's that deep inkwell, Joe?" Kayton demanded briskly as if he had never heard of a girl. "Have we any clean blotters?"

Joe was instantly busy, and in a few moments Kayton was ready for the lady from Tolworthy's.

PRINCESS MARY

Daughter of British Sovereigns
Would Marry Grim Old Warrior.

WISHED TO BECOME WIFE OF KITCHENER

Little Princess Declares Devotion to Old Warrior.

London, May 27.—The only daughter of King George, Princess Mary of England, has proposed to Lord Kitchener. The royal proposal was whispered in the park of Windsor castle one evening not long ago. Field Marshal Lord Kitchener gallantly asked the little princess to talk with her father about the alliance. The match is off.

The grizzled hero of Khartum was escorting the princess about the grounds. He is sixty-two years old, stern as an Indian chieftain; she is sixteen, shy and a hero worshiper. As they walked over the well-kept grounds Princess Mary told the renowned soldier, amid some confusion, that she had something important to say.

Royal custom demands, in cases of courtship between a woman of the royal blood and a man of lesser nobility, that the proposal be made by the woman. The embarrassment of this was what the little princess had in mind and she said so, frankly enough, despite her blushes. She wished to become her hero's wife, she said, and since she had to propose she was doing so.

For the first time in many years Lord Kitchener smiled. He told the princess that he appreciated the great honor she conferred upon him by even considering his eligibility to become her consort, but that he felt much too old to consider it. With a laugh she waived aside the age objection. Thus placed on the defensive, Lord Kitchener made no definite reply to the proposal, suggesting instead that the princess talk the matter over with her father, the king.

A day or so afterward Lord Kitchener told King George of the naive proposal and the monarch roared with laughter. Thinking it too good a joke to keep, the king told Queen Mary. She failed to see the humor of the situation and was furious, and the only tangible result of the little princess's effort to assert her royal prerogative was a week's imprisonment in her own room.

Mrs. Pankhurst Back In Jail.

London, May 27.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the leader of the militant suffragettes, is back in Holloway jail, from which she was released on ticket of leave on April 12 because of her feeble condition resulting from a hunger strike. She has been sentenced to three years for inciting malicious damage to property. She says she will at once resume her hunger strike.

Blade Penetrated Kidneys.

New York, May 27.—Conrad Braun, subscription manager of Current Literature, was stabbed in the back by Eber Carmichele, a drunken clerk, who jumped at him with a pocketknife in the office of the magazine. The blade penetrated one of Braun's kidneys, and he is likely to die.

WILL AID STATE IN ARSON CASES

Rosenberg Brothers Enter Pleas of Guilty.

GIVEN MINIMUM SENTENCES

On Condition That They Give the Officers All Possible Assistance in the Prosecutions of the Chicago Operations of the Alleged "Arson Trust," Dave and Ben Rosenberg Are Let Off Lightly at Fort Wayne.

Fort Wayne, Ind., May 27.—With pleas of guilty, accepted by the prosecuting attorney on condition that they give the officers all possible assistance in the prosecution of the Chicago operations of the alleged "arson trust," the arson cases against Dave and Ben Rosenberg came to a sudden termination here.

Dave Rosenberg entered a plea of guilty to the charge of arson, and was sentenced from two to twenty-one years in the state penitentiary. Ben Rosenberg, the younger of the two, pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit arson and to defraud the insurance companies. He received a suspended prison sentence of two to fourteen years, and paid a fine of $25 and costs.

The Rosenbergs were accused, in connection with the burning, on April 6, 1912, of a store in which they were interested in this city, and officers have linked the case up with others in the operations of the arson ring that has operated in South Bend, Chicago and at other points.

MUCH LOOT IS RECOVERED

Bloomington Schoolboy Tells Police of Many Thefts.

Bloomington, Ind., May 27.—Clifford Arthur, fifteen years old, was arrested at the Central school building on a petit larceny charge and made a confession to Chief of Police Hensley. In his desk at the building was a revolver, a quantity of ammunition and two watches, which he admitted having stolen from a local store. He had given a gold watch to one of his classmates and this was recovered by the officer. The young man also told the officers where to look for other booty he had stolen, consisting of several revolvers, an opera glass and some trinkets. They found the loot hidden under a lumber pile near the high school building. Arthur also admitted the theft of two typewriters. He stole one $100 machine from the office of the principal of the Central building. This he sold for $15 to a second-hand dealer. He stole another machine from the telephone office and sold it to another second-hand dealer for $5.

James Tyler on Trial in the Court at Vernon.

Vernon, Ind., May 27.—The trial of James Tyler for the murder of Charles McQuaid is in progress here. He was brought from the Marion county jail, where he has been since last October. These brothers lived with their maiden sister, a helpless cripple. Tyler's home was at North Vernon.

Romine and Clarke vended their cases to Bartholomew county. Both were sentenced for life. Romine was tried by a Bartholomew county jury and Clarke by a Shelby county jury. Tyler is specially strong in maintaining his innocence and is willing to stand trial in Jennings county.

Ninth Infantry Ball Tossers Will be Brought Back For Game With Locals.

WALDORFS HERE FRIDAY

Old Mr. Weather Man took a hand in the proceedings yesterday afternoon and the locals and the Ninth infantry ball team didn't get to play. The soldiers were anxious to play the Rushville team and were disappointed because it rained. The team will be brought here Sunday from Fort Harrison for a game with the locals. The Ninth Infantry team is said to be very fast and out of eleven games played this season have lost only one game. They have played some of the fastest teams in and around Cincinnati and will make the locals play to win. The team is made up of a bunch of sluggers and the pitchers are very fast. The soldiers team will no doubt attract a large crowd.

The Waldorfs of Richmond will be here Decoration Day. The Waldorfs recently lost a ten-inning game to Rushville and are out for revenge. The regular Rushville team will face the Waldorfs in Friday's game. Avery will pitch and will be opposed by Nicodemus. The Waldorfs have a fast team and the game played here a week ago last Sunday was one of the best ever played on the local grounds.

Mrs. Thomas Webster of near Gwynnville suffered a painful injury Saturday afternoon at three o'clock at her home while assisting her husband in papering the kitchen of the house. She was standing on the stove placing a strip on the ceiling when she lost her balance and she fell heavily backward to the floor. Her left wrist was broken and she was otherwise injured.

FINGERS MASHED.

Milroy Press: A. R. Hunnicutt, foreman at the school building, met with a very painful accident Saturday evening while cranking a gasoline engine. In some manner the engine kicked backward, striking Mr. Hunnicutt's hand and fingers, bruising them very much. While the injury is not dangerous it will cause much pain and inconvenience.

SECOND GAME OF LEAGUE

Will be Played Tomorrow Between Christians and Presbyterians.

The second game in the Sunday School league will be played tomorrow afternoon at the South Main street grounds between the Presbyterians and Christians. These two teams played four innings a week ago before rain interrupted the game and in this short game the two teams looked to be evenly matched. The Christians at present lead the league and the Presbyterians hope to pull them from first place. The game will be called at 4:15 o'clock. Buell will probably be on the mound. Carr will pitch for the Christians.

KICKS BUGGY TO PIECES.

Milroy Press: Sunday morning John Rickman of near Andersonville drove into town, hitching his horse to a rack near the Presbyterian church. A little later the animal began kicking viciously until it freed itself from the buggy, demolishing the dash and one wheel. Bystanders went quickly to give first aid and succeeded in quieting the animal and pushing the remains of the buggy out of reach of its treacherous heels. The horse was supposed to have been frightened by a passing automobile.

LOSS FOR THIRD WEEK SMALLER

Report to State Fire Marshall Shows

That Loss For 73 Fires Was 94,700.

LIGHTNING PLAYS BIG PART

Five Conflagrations Believed Incen-

diary While Three Were From Explosions.

Almost one-fourth of Indiana's fires reported during the third week of May were caused by lightning.

This fact is shown in the week's summary made by W. E. Longley, State Fire Marshall. His report also shows that the state suffered less by fire during the third week in May than in either the first or second weeks.

For the week ending May 21st there were seventy-three reported fires with a total approximate loss of $94,700—or an average of about $1,300 for each fire.

During the first week of May there were eighty-one fires, with a loss of $415,950. The average loss for each fire was about $5,000. During the second week of May there were 119 fires and a loss of $206,040. The average fire loss was $1,750.

The smaller number of fires and the reduced loss during the third week of May is a variation such as may come naturally in any "activity," although the figures are nearer to normal than those of the first week when the loss was close to a half-million dollars.

Since most fires are preventable, some form of carelessness is the cause of nearly every fire—leaving arson out of consideration. Therefore, during the third week of May the people of Indiana were for some reason more careful. As a direct consequence fire waste was reduced.

During the third week of May there were seventeen fires which are classified as of "unknown" origin. As stated, lightning came in for second "honors," having set fire to sixteen buildings.

The next cause in importance is listed in the Fire Marshall's office as "adjoining buildings." One burning building sets fire to another. There were nine of these fires.

There were five cases of supposed arson. Sparks from engines set fire to five buildings, and a like number of buildings were fired by sparks from chimneys.

Defective flues caused four fires. Matches and cigar stubs also caused four.

Three fires were due to explosions, two to stoves, two to spontaneous combustion and one to hot ashes dumped near inflammable material.

Reports on fires are now being received each day by Fire Marshal Longley from the township trustees, town clerks and fire chiefs who, under the new law, are named as his assistants and are required to send information promptly. These assistants have blank forms for their reports and are taking up their work with a will.

NOT A HABIT ANYWAY.

Newcastle Star: The Star guesses that the Michigan editor who is up against T. R. this week will have a hard time of it proving that the former president was a drinking man. Those who know Theodore Roosevelt best know that he is not in the habit of becoming intoxicated.

An error was made yesterday in stating Walter Conaway had gone to Indianapolis for an operation for kidney trouble. Rather he is merely in the hospital to take treatment, and it is reported that he is already showing improvement.

Certain Success

Will follow saving. The great men of every country—the world's leaders in every line—unite in saying this. Read their own words:

"Save, young man, and become respectable and respected. It is the surest way." —Benjamin Franklin.
"Teach economy; that is one of the first and highest virtues. It begins with saving money." —Abraham Lincoln.

"Economy is the keynote of character and success. A boy who is taught to save his money will rarely be a bad man or a failure; the man who saves will rise in his trade or profession steadily; this is inevitable." —Gladstone.

"The little savings bank in the home means more for the future of the children of a family, almost, than all of the advice in the world. It gives them the right start." —William McKinley.
